Surrogate Theodore H. Sikman has handed down an opinion in the appeal from the decree, assessing taxes on the legacles given by the will of Henry P. De Graff, under the Transfer Tax law. Mr. De Graff died in 1856, leaving a will, in which he begueathed to his wife Eboon, and also the house and lot at Fifth-ave, and One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st. New-York City also, certain household furniture, these gifts to be in lieu and bar of dower. It appears that there were liens upon this property amounting to more than $50.00, which were paid and discharged by the executors, and the decree appealed from fixed a tax on the legacy of $50.00, and also on the amount of incumbrances on the real estate paid off by the executors. The point raised by the appellants was that the incumbrances on the real estate, which the executors were directed to pay were debts or obligations of the estate, and are therefore exempted in arriving at the value of the succession. The Surrogate finds the contrary to be the law, and cites a number of decisions in support of his optnion. Several other points raised by the appellants are also disposed of by the Surrogate in his optnion, who finds that the decree must be sustained with costs.

THE CALEDONIANS' NEW HOME.

LAYING OF THE CORNERSTONE OF THE CLUBHOUSE IN EIGHTH-AVE.-WALLACE

BRUCE'S ELOQUENT ADDRESS. More than one thousand representatives of the New-York Caledonian Club, Scottish clansmen of Manhattan and Brooklyn and friends from all parts of the surrounding district assembled on Friday evening to witness the ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the New-York Caledonian Club's nouse, in Eighth-ave near Fifty-fourth-st. the hour appointed some two hundred kilted Scots, with pipers and Scottish flags, marched upon the platform, which covered the entire space to be oc-cupied by the new building. They were only the vanguard of a great procession, and every point of vantage was at once filled. Chief Robb called the gathering to order, and a dedicatory prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Hunter, a member of the clubs. The box, which contained records of the club, speeches, poems, financial statements and an account of Rear-Admiral Dewey's victory at Mantla. was hermetically scaled and placed in the cornerstone, which was swung by a derrick into its place. The chief read a list of the entire contents, and declared the stone well and securely laid. The band struck up "Scots Wha Hae," at the close of which Wallace Bruce pronounced an eloquent and inspiring oration, of which the following is a part inspiring oration, of which the following is a part:

Chief Robb, Members of the New-York Caledonian Chib, Ladies and Gentlemen: In response to the invitation of the members of the New-York Caledonian Clib, who have honored me by a request to lay the cornerstone of their new cluthouse in the heart of this great city, I come with pleasure and price and appreciation of a great compliment.

Hemembering your kindness to me on many occasions and the cord-ality of Scotsmen on both sides of the sea, I could not have responded otherwise, although I knew full well the difficulty of giving an address worthy of the occasion. I trust, however, at this time for inspiration to Scottish hearts, ever warm in the cause of country, freedom and fraternity, as I shall consider briefly the far-reaching associations of the gathering, the time and the event.

Turning to Chief Robb, Mr. Bruce said:

Event.

Turning to Chief Robb, Mr. Bruce said:
You, sir, are presiding here over a parliament of all Scotland, for before you are representatives of every shire and borough of old Scotla. The people here assembled go back in memory at this hour to the banks of the Doon, the Ayr, the Ettrick, the Yarrow, the Tweed and the Clyde. They wander again by the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond, along the steep allisides of Loch Awe, and among the mountain fastnesses of Loch Awe, and among the mountain fastnesses of Loch Kattine. You hear again sours of love and valor until the three thousand miles of the sait sea are reduced to the diameter of a tear, which trickles from moistened eyelids. The romances of Walter Scott and the ballads of Robert Burns are all blended to-day in the memories of a marvellous land of heauty.

The story of Scotsmen on this side of the Atlantic who helped us to lay the foundation of the Republic is also recalled. We see Alexander Hamilton walking through meadows then sloping to the Hudson. We see Washington Irving on his way to Sunnyside, who threw a romance over Sleepy Hollow and the Catskills, like that of Scott over the Tweed and the Border Country. We call to mind the Scottish woman, Mrs. Ross, of Philadelphia, who, with Washington and Morris, designed the first flag of columbia was wrought by a woman's hand, and thrice fitting that in the hand of the maker of yonder banner flowed blood in honorable descent from those who fought at Bannockburn.

This day, moreover, is the anniversary of Bannockburn, fitting day for the rearing of a Caledonian structure, for on this day almost six hundred years ago was laid the cornerstone of Scottish independence. This, moreover, is St. John's Day, when in olden times fires were lit on every Scottish little and mountain, fitting day for the cornerstone service of a building dedicated to keeping alive the fires of Scottish patriotism!

Then pointing to the flags above them, Mr. Bruce closed his address, which from the first sentence to the last stirred the hearts of all present and elicited frequent applause, with the following eloquent peroration:

I see waving above us the Star-Spangled Banner the Scottish standard and the British flag. May they continue to wave in the future, as now, side by side: not lost or swallowed up in each other's folds, but in happy fraternity, to foster forever through all the ages a wider liberty.

D. and William Rockefeller. The third was made on behalf of William H. Douglass, of this city, who recently purchased the Henry L. Douglass estate

This is the second suit the Rockefellers have brought against the village of North Tarrytown, one being pending over their 1897 assessments, and makes the fourth proceeding in which they are volved concerning their tax assessments in Westchester County. A similar action was brought annointed referee to take testimony in the matter but no herrings have been held, as the lawyers considered it advisable to await the decision of the referee in the cases concerning the 1897 valua-tions in Mount Pleasant Township.

Rockefeller stated that his assessment was "illegal ment roll and set down therein, in manner and form, the matter and things required; that they did not assess the real property of non-residents to the occupant, and they did not designate the real property of non-residents as required by law. He further states that his assessment of £24.331 on 30 acres and buildings is erroneous by reason of overvaluation to the extent of £11.711. To prove that his property is unequally assessed. Mr. Rockefelier has elted fifteen instances in which he believes property has been undervalued.

William Rockefelier's petition is similar in the main to his brother's, and further states that no attempt was made by the assessors to distinguish his land by proper boundaries, or in any other way, as the law requires; that they did not even attempt to obtain correct information in regard to the matter, and that they failed to observe the requirements relating to the realty assessments of non-residents, not only in his case but in others. He claims that his assessment of £8.990. William H. Douglass, who joins the Rockefeliers this year in their fight for lower assessments, two weeks ago purchased the Henry S. sel, if it was literally carried out, would ste Mr. Whalen based his decision on the point that the Liberty Island boat was a regular ferry. This the promoters of the statue fund and those who are now on the committee deny. They say that the boat is an excursion boat and nothing more and as such does not require a city framelise. They argue that if the excursion boat to Liberty beam is to be considered a ferry and as such should have a city framelise the same would be equally true as THREE WRITS OF CERTIORARI GRANTED tree was neatly stripped out and sent crashing to the street. At Park and Gouverneur aves, a big tree was torn up by the roots. Aside from many trees stripped of branches and blown down, the wind had the curious effect of turning the leaves of smaller growths the wrong way.

HIS INJURIES WERE FATAL.

Dominick Scarpio, one of the two workmen burned by the explosion in Gerhard's fireworks facburned by the explosion in Gernard's fireworks fac-tory in Jersey City, on Friday, died yesterday at the City Hospital. He was fifty-one years old, and lived in Washington-st. Brooklyn. He was married. The other man injured, Antonio Maputorio, twenty-one years old, of Sackett-st. Brooklyn, is in a criti-
